DIG 4

Many thanks to all who took part in our latest test pit excavations over the 15 & 16 July. It was another successful weekend with 22 people taking part. Thanks must also go to Mathew Morris for giving up his weekend to take a 'busman's holiday'; Paul & Penny Coulson who allowed us to dig on their land and set up our finds processing centre; the Village Hall Management Committee for loan of tables and South Cambs District Council for permission to open a test pit on their land in front of the bungalows in Streetly End. This test pit provided us with perhaps the most exciting finds. We recovered a large amount of early medieval pottery along with oyster shells and bones but no later material. The question now is why was it there? Was this the local rubbish dump or does it come from occupation in the vicinity? In contrast very little was recovered from Laura's garden next door at no 35!

Three other test pits were dug in Burton End. One was o n t h e by footpath White Gables where there would have been back gardens some cottages shown on old maps. The material recovered from here was mostly early18th and 19th century, so it looks like these were not part of medieval settlement. The test pit in Arthur's garden (23/25) did contain medieval pottery along with a large amount of small scrap metal items such as hinges and bolts.

Trevor's test pit revealed part of a building, possibly the house which is shown on 19th century maps but no useful dating evidence, although he is planning on extending his test pit to find out more. Dig 4 was registered as part of the nationwide Festival of Archaeology and we had about 24 visitors over the two days.

We think we would still like to open a few more test pits next year but this wi11 probably he the last chance for you to offer your garden or other land. W e have plenty of experienced diggers now so you don't have to dig a test pit yourself unless of course you want to. Please get in touch if you can help.

Don't forget you can find out more on our page on westwickham.org but also look at our own website

ROAD CLOSURE

Streetly End is going to be closed near the bend at the West Wickham end of the street for 1 day between 21 - 25 August. This is so that a new electrical supply can be installed to a building site. More details will be delivered to houses in the area and warning signs will go up 2 weeks in advance.

DEGRADED MOBILE PHONE RECEPTION

The mobile phone equipment covering West Wickham and Streely End of the mobile phone operator Three has been affected by a major fault since 12 June. This also affects all mobile phone service providers who piggy back off Three or share their telecommunications infrastructure in our area. Three are aware of the problem and have had engineers on site at various stages, but have been unable to resolve the issue as of 20 July and engineers are still working on the problem.

If you are unlucky enough to have gone from 1-2 bars to zero bars reception, I encourage you to contact your mobile service provider to report the degraded service and ask for a refund of your monthly fees for the previous and current month. Why should you pay for a service they have stopped providing? Please also drop me an email at alex@schuilenburg.org with the name of your provider and a brief description of how badly the reception has degraded - I will pass this information onto our MP if the issue is not soon resolved.

The Three representative did offer a small consolation: a new mast is scheduled to be installed in October/November 2017 to the south-west of us which is supposed to improve our reception with Three, it's partners and the operators who piggy back off their networks.

VILLAGE HUB NIGHT

We would like to thank everyone who has helped us with the new HUB nights; family and friends have been very supportive. We have enjoyed the monthly gatherings but as it is a community event we are hoping that someone else might like to take on the September / October meetings.

We agreed to give £100 from the profit each month to a worthy cause. So far these have been Red Nose day, the Manchester Bombing Appeal and the new Book Swap which Perla is organising in the redundant phone box.

We are arranging a Christmas themed HUB night on 23 December.

NATURE NOTES – BEE SPECIAL

We are always going on in this column about the (perhaps) more glamorous mammals, birds and butterflies but I think most of us realise the crucial role that bees, along with many other insects, play in the survival of other life forms. I don't want to appear selfish, but this includes us.

Malcolm's item about bee swarms last month triggered Di and I to devote the whole of nature notes this month to bees. The swarm that gave rise to this article was on the pear tree on their allotment, and these were honey bees. There are however well over 250 different species of wild bee in Britain and we should cherish them. Something like 230 of these are solitary bees, so just like humans, not all bees are sociable.

The Bee Walk Scheme (Lynn)

Every month from March to September I walk a transect route along the footpath to Leys Wood and count bumblebees. I've been doing this for five years. It's part of a national bumblebee monitoring scheme called BeeWalk, by the Bumblebee Conservation Trust (www.bumblebeeconservation.org). I chose the route because it cuts through the edge of a bluebell wood, which on the May walk runs close to a huge number of flowering bluebells. I have learned two things from doing this count. One is that woodlands are enormously important for nesting bumblebees. There are always nest-searching queens near the footpath where it runs through the woods in the spring. One year I found a nest of the tree bumblebee in a hollow tree on the transect. The second thing I have seen is the importance of gardens and flowering verges for foraging bumblebees. There are always more bumblebees along the hedgerows and ditch banks behind Maypole Croft than on the rest of the walk, even when the bluebells are in full flower.

Nationally, the scheme is designed to calculate population trends for bumblebees. It shows that for the period 2010-2016, the total number of bumblebees has declined. Although five species are increasing, 10 are declining (there are only enough data to get trends for 15 species, although we have 24 species of bumblebee altogether).

Stories of West Wickham bees

Steve discovered a large amount of earth, grass, curious brown pea-sized things in the road near Maypole Croft with many large bumble bees flying around and clearly in distress as the nest had been disturbed. The conclusion was that a badger had been foraging. Di and Tom swept and shovelled the soil to the side of the road as the contents of the nest were likely to be squashed by cars. The little brown packets were individual cells with tiny embryonic bees inside, which were fascinating under a microscope. There was one huge bee on the surface, flying about, which they presumed was the queen as it was double the size of any other.

Earlier in the year Brian and Linda's bird box was taken over by bees. After a few weeks of inactivity we took the top off and looked inside to find some nesting material which appeared to have been glued to the floor of the box. Once it was removed we found a number of bright yellow larvae, still very much alive despite the fact that adult bees appeared to have moved on some time ago. The best guess is that these were tree bumblebees, which often do make use of bird nesting boxes.

How can we help?

On a visit to Bradfield Wood in Suffolk recently we walked alongside a part of the wood bordering a field margin with a wonderful array of insect-friendly flowers. It was alive with bees, butterflies and other insects. Here in West Wickham and other villages locally there are many field margins reserved for environmental stewardship which in the main contain grasses and a few wild flowers such as knapweed or chicory. These are fine for some species, such as the meadow brown and ringlet butterfly, but don't quite meet the need of those insects like bees which depend on nectar and pollen throughout the spring and summer for the food they need. It would be good to see one or two of these field margins producing a more varied wildflower crop throughout the year. Farmers may say this is easier said than done, but if done well the results are beautiful.

Apart from field margins, many insects are heavily reliant on gardens for their nectar sources. Gardeners World the other evening gave some advice on this, the most important of which was that we should try and refrain from paving over our gardens, and favour native flowers over exotic hybrids. Further advice can be obtained from www.wildaboutgardensweek.org.uk

One to look out for

If you see a huge black bee with purple wings, the size of a queen bumblebee, it is not an illusion. It is the spectacular violet carpenter bee, which is solitary, common in Europe but expanding its range into the UK, probably as a result of climate change. Recorded in Northants, it would be great to hear about one in West Wickham so let us know if you see it

DON'T DOG OWNERS WALK THE SAME WAY TWICE?

How else is it that they don't step in the mess they allow their dogs to leave behind? Yes, we've covered this subject many times but it is still the issue, along with speeding, that provokes the most complaints and concerns. Both are unneighbourly and anti-social (to say nothing about being illegal) where the actions of a small minority impact on the majority. Yes, it's not very pleasant and probably inconvenient but PLEASE will all dog owners act responsibly and clear up after their dog or ensure those in charge of their dog clear up. It is illegal not to clear up after a dog on land open to the air to which the public are entitled or permitted to have access with or without payment. This includes pavements, areas adjacent to public highways or public open spaces such as the playing field. You certainly shouldn't allow your dog to foul someone's front path as happened recently and it would be far more pleasant for everyone if mess was cleared from public footpaths too. After all who wants to walk continually with their eyes to the ground and not be able to enjoy o u r wonderful countryside?

FROM THE VICARAGE

By the time you read this the summer holidays will be well under way, with children going around the villages enjoying being outside in the fresh air, perhaps having some picnics, playing in the park and leading a simple life. This time of refreshment enables us to connect with the natural world with the harvest in full flow and appreciating the flora and fauna around us.

It is hard to believe that Julie left us a year ago, but we have managed to maintain regular services in the 7 churches due to the hard work of the clergy, churchwardens and willing helpers. Not only are we maintaining the status quo but we are also growing in our outreach in the community, with activities such as fetes, concerts and an art exhibition to come.

There has been a steady flow of requests for baptisms in some of the churches, which is really encouraging. As I was thinking about baptism I realised that in days gone by it was a rite of passage. Once the baby had arrived it was a chance to "wet" the baby's head followed by a trip to church for the naming of the infant and then a party afterwards. This is a wonderful way to celebrate a new life. Joining the family of the church is not just for that in the village but is to be part of the whole Anglican Communion worldwide. It is amazing to think of a family on such a large scale. There is the support of the parents and godparents as well as the church community helping them to grow in faith. We celebrate that with the baptised person. It does not always have to be a baby, adults too can come forward to experience God's love, which is not limited to the privileged few, but accessible to all, regardless of who they are. We are all made in the image of God. Cardinal Newman said 'The day you are baptised is the greatest day of all, even above ordination 'If this is something you would like to know more about please get in touch.

We have so much to be thankful for in our lives on our journey of faith. On this journey there are times when we travel with certain friends, and other times when there are others who only accompany us very briefly. In a society that has many lonely people perhaps we could be one such friend, to walk alongside someone who is lonely.

1ST HORSEHEATH BROWNIES

We have had a busy time since our last report. We had a great time singing our hearts out at the Annual District Campfire held at the Jarman Centre in Newmarket. There was a good mix of old and new songs, some with actions others more of a serenade.

At the beginning of July we celebrated Rainbows' 30th Birthday with a joint Rainbow and Brownie Funday held at Horseheath Village Hall. Using the Girlguiding Anglia Region Rainbows' 30th Birthday Challenge Badge for our ideas 50 girls from Balsham and Linton Rainbows, Balsham, Burrough Green and Horseheath Brownies joined together to make and the try sushi, make bracelets, flapped fish, decorated fish and sand art pictures. All the girls went home with bags filled with everything they had made during the day. Obviously they ate the sushi.

We also attended the Annual District Strawberry Evening held at Linton House. The evening was a huge success and the predicted thunderstorms never materialised.

At the end of term we said "goodbye" to Anna who is moving to Ireland with her family during the school holidays. We return to Brownies at the beginning of September so if you have a daughter who would be interested in joining us please register her at www.girlguiding.org.uk/interested.

If you would like more information on what we do or would like to help us with a special skill you may have then please drop us an email.

BALSHAM SCOUT NEWS

It's been a while since we have sent an update on all things scouting in the village. Despite the hut still being 'work in progress' it has been business as usual for the sections. The Scouts have spent some time at the Jarman centre building on their outdoor skills. The Cubs have made good use of the lovely weather and have done pond dipping, wide games, nature scavenger hunts and we had a fantastic time at the Newmarket District Cub camp with around 150 other cubs. But most importantly we are really excited to have a new Beaver colony thanks to Alex Stokes who has volunteered to become a Beaver Leader. The colony opened in April and I believe there are 11 Beavers who have been invested to date.

As you will have noticed the Scout hut is up and weather proof, however we still need to do the internal fittings. We are really grateful to Jim Daniels for his work on the internal partitioning. We have a few other people who have volunteered their time and expertise to help us (there is still room for more!) but we thought it was about time people had a chance to have a look inside the hut therefore we held an open morning on 24 June. Bacon butties and hot drinks were served whilst everyone could have a look at progress so far. Whilst this was happening the Beavers, Cubs and Scouts were out and about around the village cleaning road name signs. This was our way of saying thank you to the Parish Council who are continuing to support us in many ways. The groups really enjoyed the excuse to get wet and were please with their achievements that morning. Hopefully the photos show what a difference they made to the signs.

If you have any children who would be interested in joining the Scouting movement we hold a waiting list. Please contact us on the details below. Equally if any adults are interested in becoming helpers/leaders please contact Paul Carter.

HERE COMES THE SUN!

We are having a fantastic summer so far - I must qualify that I am writing this on 21 June, it is bright and sunny outside and the temperature is an amazing 27 deg C. When you read this it may well be a different story, knowing the unpredictability of our weather.

The sun cream I use is a middle of the price range and one that is very water resistant as I swim outdoors a lot. I tend to use the ones for kids and very high sun protection factor (SPF) .This one is 50+ which supposedly only allows a 50th of the UV radiation through, with 5 UVA stars – maximum rating.

Tanning is not a bad thing. It is the body's response to increase ultraviolet radiation, producing darker melanin and more melanin and protecting the cells from damage. A bit of sun on the skin is also good to produce vitamin D, and makes us feel better.

The problem is too much sun, too strong and too often. This causes genetic changes in the skin cells and ages the skin. Some people don't tan well, they burn. Over time or with repeated skin damage, the cells change and can become damaged, causing flaky reddish patches (Actinic keratoses) particularly on the face and other exposed areas eg. arms and legs. These can occasionally turn to skin cancer.

Melanoma can appear anywhere in the body, but the trunk is the most common place, so if you have a partner or friend, check their back from time to time. If caught early they can be easily cured by removing them, but they do spread to other organs, sometimes quickly, and sometimes they are caught late.

In the UK, melanoma is diagnosed at a mean age of around 50 years but a fifth of cases occur in young adults and as a result it has a large impact in terms of years of life lost. Over the last 30 years the incidence of melanoma has increased more than for any other common cancer in the UK. Lifetime risk of 1 in 60.

The thing to look out for is change in a mole – change in size, change in shape and change in colour. We also use the "ABC" rule when checking a mole:-

A for Asymmetry

B for irregular Border

C for Colour (the more colours the more concerned one would be).

So do seek advice from your GP early if you feel something is not right with your skin and remember the Australian health campaign. 'Slip, Slop, Slap, Seek, Slide' is probably the best slogan to remember in preventing problems.

Slip on a shirt, Slop on the 30+ sunscreen, Slap on a hat, Seek shade or shelter, Slide on some sunnies (sun glasses).

I am raising money for melanoma research in primary care via the local charity Melanoma Focus by swimming the English Channel in August. This money will go to projects designed to prevent melanoma and pick them up early in General Practice. It will fund research by Dr Fiona Walters at Strangeways laboratories in Cambridge who has already worked with local surgeries and patients over the last 10 years or so. It is really important research to avoid unnecessary suffering and deaths. If you would like to support this pleas go to http://uk.virginmoneygiving.com/MigArbide

MEADOW SCHOOL NEWS

The words amazing, fantastic, outstanding, brilliant are banded around so freely these days that sometimes when you say them people don't appreciate their true meaning and the effort that has gone in to the results that you then declare to be those words. I can honestly say that every time I have written or said these words this year they have been heartfelt and the hard work behind them has been so evident.

As the academic year draws to a close we have celebrated so many successes and achievements there isn't enough room within my word limit to mention them all or to thank all of the people involved. What I am most proud of though is that through all of the tough and challenging times (and in education there are many) we haven't lost sight of what is important to us as a school. We haven't compromised on our core education and enrichment offer and we haven't let suggestions/ideas from those up high (in the Department for Education or Ofsted) change our thoughts and focus on what we believe is important. The mantra – 'We do things because they have impact on our children and not just to tick a box' may as well be tattooed on all of the staff. I am proud to say even in times when pressures mean taking a huge risk to not fully conform or to introduce something new, we have stuck to our guns and we do things for our children and not to please others.

The risk has very much paid off as yet again our end of year results place us significantly above both Cambridgeshire and the National Average for all recordable measures. 83% of our youngest children achieved their Good Level of Development compared to the national average (70.9%). Our Year 1 children achieved a remarkable 4th year in a row of 100% pass of the phonics check, while Year 2 scored between 10-20% higher in reading, writing and maths compared to the national average. Our Year 6 children also worked their socks off, achieving 10% or more compared to the national average in reading, writing and maths with an overall combined score of 71% compared to the national average of 61% (full results available on our website). Our results are exceptionally pleasing and huge congratulations should be given to every child and staff member who has worked with them.

As we bid our current Year 6 children a fond farewell, we look forward to welcoming our new Reception children in September. They will be starting their school careers in a time when funding is at its worst and the picture of education seems to be forever changing. What I can safely say is that we will continue to do what we believe is right and have impact on our learners – we won't compromise on opportunities, experiences or quality teaching just so we can tick a box!

We share photos and news of everything that happens at The Meadow on our twitter page, @Meadow_Balsham. Take a peek!

LINTON VILLAGE NEWS

A young person's education consists of all sorts of experiences beyond the regular curriculum at LVC. As well as learning important knowledge and skills that will help them to achieve success in academic study and the next steps in their lives, opportunities at school also help our young people to learn valuable life lessons about themselves and their communities.

Our PSHE (personal, social and health education) and enrichment programmes are ways in which students do this. Through a diverse range of topics and activities, our young people are enabled to mature and develop their understanding of their own personal development and of the world around them.

As with every generation that has come before them, it is a challenging and exciting time to be a young adult. With a degree of uncertainty about what the future has to hold, and the promise of the change that they have the power to enact, we aspire to help our students to play a positive and productive role in their communities and in wider society. A key element of this is to develop their confidence, independence and sense of responsibility.

One way in which we help young adults to broaden their horizons and learn from those that are different as well as similar to themselves is by providing opportunities to travel and benefit from an exposure to new experiences and contexts

This academic year there has been a great range of local and international excursions. In the last month, students of all ages have participated in the Wind Band Tour to Croatia, playing live music in a number of town squares across the Adriatic coastline. Currently twenty of our Year 11 students are on a Camps International adventure in Cambodia. Following a great deal of personal fundraising, they are spending four weeks exploring the country and helping to contribute to community infrastructure through charity volunteer work, such as helping to build schools.

These kinds of life experiences are character-shaping and help our young people to grow, learn and mature in all kinds of ways that can't be tested or measured through a formal exam.
